

Tasting Historical Europe – Exploring the culinary threads between Austria and Lithuania

eCookbook

Discover historical recipes between Austria and Lithuania in the free Europeana Food and Drink eCookbook dedicated to the gastronomical history of Europe.

“Tasting Historical Europe – Exploring the culinary threads between Austria and Lithuania” takes a look at Europe from a different angle considering it to be a net of culinary connections where invisible historic threads lead to traditional kitchens. The book is filled with traditional recipes from early cookbooks accompanied with old pictures and illustrations, as well as modern dishes interpretations that could easily find ways to the contemporary kitchens of the reader. Seven food bloggers from Lithuania and Austria contributed to this culinary exploration of their countries, bringing traditional and historic recipes into the present.

Moreover, stories about Europe’s well-known historic events and famous people are told through the eyes of a foodie. Do you know what the favorite dish of the Austrian Emperor Franz Joseph was? Can you imagine what dishes were preferred by the famous Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth noblemen family of the Radziwiłłs? Or do you have an idea what the battle of Vienna has to do with coffee?

Answers to these questions, more stories and recipes can be found in the eCookbook “Tasting Historical Europe -Exploring the culinary threads between Austria and Lithuania”.
